

This week was entirely focused on the project demonstration and progress report. My contribution to these tasks was to provide a working version of the web app to show the assessor as well as the client. The client saw the current functionality of the web app as well as our designs for the visual components of the app. Our client sent back feedback regard these. He seemed to be very happy with our progress and the vision we have for the app for the next phase of the project. The screens shots provided in individual progress report 8 show the screens shots that were used to describe the functionality of the web app to the client as well as the assessor in our demonstration. The web app has met almost all of the requirements and selection criteria outlined by Jordan at the beginning of this phase of the project.
